This tiny new boutique estate counts just a single hectare for Brunello production (and an additional half a hectare for Rosso). Owners Ilaria and Mike Martini explain that with an altitude reaching 480 metres, a western exposure and forest encircling the vineyard, the cool microclimate always results in a relatively late harvest. In 2019, they picked on 9 October. There is a slight macerated nature to the cherry and strawberry but overall, lovely fruit purity. Notes of pepper, warm flint and citrus blossom lend complexity. Vertical in delivery as zesty acidity accentuates grainy tannins. Sincere and clean. Give this another year to come together.
